CH Shannon's Baby Boomer Gone Wild

"Woodstock"

9/24/07-3/20/22

Woodstock was one of those dogs that just fit right into our household from the first moment. She was born here, sired by a boy we had here from Lorri Gordon, Dovetail Boomerang "Boomer" and out of CH Shannon's One Wild Night "Floozie", who was a daughter of our Beauregard. I had fun with the Boomer name and the three I ran on from the litter all had names related to Baby Boomers in some way, hence, Baby Boomer Gone Wild.

Woodstock was a very "typey" black girl and did well at both specialties and all breed shows. Her only downfall was that she hated to show. I can vividly remember a show at the old Medina fairgrounds in the heat of summer. Woodstock needed one point to finish. Charlie Fippin was the judge and I could tell she liked Woodstock. However, Woodstock didn't do one single thing to help herself and moped around the ring like she was being tortured. The judge gave her every chance in the world, but Woodstock didn't earn it. I was so frustrated with her but it was hard to be mad at such a mushy, sweet girl. It took handler Theresa Lee's squeaky dog show voice to get her excited enough to get that last point, finally.

Time blurs memories, so when Woodstock had become a veteran, she looked so good, I couldn't resist entering her in veterans at Miami Valley. She quickly reminded me how much she hated showing. I could barely get her around the ring the first day. Jared Frasher will tell you that changing handlers for the next day didn't make any difference. That was her last show.

Woodstock never once chewed up anything in the house and never barked until she became an advanced senior and wanted her way. She was so very tolerant of the Cavaliers constantly cleaning her ears and her eyes and lying on top of her. When we had puppies in the house, she was also patient with their antics. Even the cats could pester her, playing with her wagging tail.

Watching these guys grow old and all that comes with that is never easy, but they let us know when it is time. Woodstock's brother, Ringo, just passed away a couple weeks ago. Yesterday, Woodstock let us know it was her time. I delivered her when she was born, and I was there when she took her last breath. She was a special girl.

Fact Sheet for Pet Owners and Veterinarians about Potential Adverse Events Associated with Isoxazoline Flea and Tick Products

Fast Facts

- The FDA is alerting pet owners and veterinarians of the potential for neurologic adverse events in dogs and cats when treated with drugs that are in the isoxazoline class.
- Although these products can and have been safely used in the majority of dogs and cats, pet owners should consult with their veterinarian to review their patients' medical histories and determine whether a product in the isoxazoline class is appropriate for their pet.

What should I know?

- The FDA considers products in the isoxazoline class to be safe and effective for dogs and cats but is providing this information so that pet owners and veterinarians can take it into consideration when choosing flea and tick products for their pets.
- Isoxazoline products have been associated with neurologic adverse reactions, including muscle tremors, ataxia, and seizures in some dogs and cats;
- Although most dogs and cats haven't had neurologic adverse reactions, seizures may occur in animals without a prior history;
- Many products are available for prevention and control of flea and tick infestations. Some flea and tick products are regulated by the FDA and some are regulated by the Environmental Protection Agency. You can discuss all options with your veterinarian to choose the right product for your pet.

What products are in the isoxazoline class?

The FDA-approved drugs in this class are

- Bravecto (fluralaner) tablets for dogs
- Bravecto (fluralaner) topical solution for cats and dogs
- Bravecto Plus (fluralaner and moxidectin) topical solution for cats
- Bravecto 1-month (fluralaner) tablets for dogs
- Credelio (lotilaner) tablets for dogs and cats
- Nexgard (afoxolaner) tablets for dogs
- Simparica (sarolaner) tablets for dogs
- Simparica Trio (sarolaner, moxidectin and pyrantel) tablets for dogs
- Revolution Plus (selamectin and sarolaner) topical solution for cats
- These products are approved for the treatment and prevention of flea infestations, and the treatment and control of tick infestations. Some are also approved for treatment and control of ear mite infestations and some gastrointestinal parasite infections, and a few are also approved for prevention of heartworm disease.

What should I do if my pet has an adverse drug event while using an isoxazoline product?

- If your dog or cat experiences any adverse event while using an isoxazoline product, first consult your veterinarian.
- The FDA continues to monitor adverse drug event reports for these products and encourages pet owners and veterinarians to report adverse drug events. You can do this by reporting to the drugs' manufacturers, who are required to report this information to the FDA, or by submitting a report directly to the FDA.
- To report suspected adverse drug events for these products and/or obtain a copy of the Safety Data Sheet (SDS) or for technical assistance, contact the appropriate manufacturers at the following phone numbers:
 - ◊ Merck Animal Health (Bravecto): 800-224-5318
 - ◊ Elanco Animal Health (Credelio): 888-545-5973
 - ◊ Boehringer Ingelheim (Nexgard): 888-637-4251
 - ◊ Zoetis (Simparica, Revolution Plus): 888-963-8471
- If you prefer to report directly to the FDA, or want additional information about adverse drug experience reporting for animal drugs, see How to Report Animal Drug and Device Side Effects and Product Problems.
- Pet owners and veterinarians who have additional questions can contact AskCVM@fda.hhs.gov or call 240-402-7002.
